Entry requirements:

Doctoral study of the Interpretation and Theory of Interpretation programmes is intended for masters graduates of interpretations arts (hereinafter specialisations), who satisfy the demanding conditions of the entrance examination.

Entrance examination

takes place in front of the entrance examination committee (admissions committee).

As part of the entrance examination, the applicant submits in writing his/her own proposal and topic for the intended dissertation (see the mandatory attachment to the application) as well as a list of representative recitals with a total duration of 80 to 90 minutes, with at least one composition matching the thematic focus of the intended dissertation.

The applicant will present a part of the submitted repertoire, as selected by the admissions committee.

The entrance examination will further continue in the form of a discussion on the topic of the intended dissertation.

The admissions committee assesses the degree of seriousness of the applicant's proposal. It is within its competence to potentially supplement, extend or otherwise modify or change the topic.

The admissions committee evaluates the following criteria using a 1-25 points system:

- the professional disposition of the doctoral candidate,
- demonstrable achievements in the relevant field,
- the quality and desirability of the intended dissertation topic,
- a practical examination in the relevant field,
- the professional level of the discussion with the candidate,
- orientation in related theoretical disciplines.

Upon completion of the entrance examination and based on the result, the admissions committee will create in closed session a ranking based on the average of the individual applicants' points and will recommend those applicants who achieved a minimum score of 22 points and whose ranking at the same time falls within the quota for the specific field.

In the event that candidates have achieved the same number of points, the admissions committee will decide by a vote on the final order for admission. In the event of a tie, the chair of the commission shall have the casting vote.

If there are not enough candidates satisfying the condition of the points evaluation, the quota will not be filled.
